Dear Janet and Edward,

Janet: I read a profile on Thomas Bernhard that intrigued me. He is the reigning super-star of literary Europe and Frost is his first novel translated into English. It has been ages since I read a novel of any worth but I liked this one and hope you do too.

Edward: No True Glory is not as well written as Blackhawk Down but it is very real and contemporary. It is not just about 2005, but also today... and tomorrow.
