Hi Andy,

I had really hoped that the next time I wrote you it would be to say I was coming to Maui to meet you and visit Wilfred Lund's grave site. And someday I hope that trip comes to pass.

The not-so-good-news I write you about is about getting a title for Wilfred's car. After I gave Will a ride to the airport, on his way to meet you, I parked his car at a mutual friend's house (Don Carver's). In the driveway where it has sat ever since.

For awhile it seemed Will's brother in Spokane might want it but that didn't pan out. Anyway it is time to get it out of Don's driveway and on to the wrecking yard. The car is not worth anything much but even to sell it to a junk yard I need a title of ownership and we never found one when we cleaned out Will's place in Coulee City. It might have been with the package of Will's personal effects that you mailed to his brother and was subsequently stolen. Anyway no title to the car ever showed up.

I went to the Department of Licenses again last Friday. The last time I went there they said what I needed was the license plate number, which I did have when I went back.

I came away with two forms that Wilfred's sister in Texas will have to fill out and sign and have notarized. And I need to write the coroner or medical examiner in Maui, Hawaii and ask him to give me a certified death certificate to turn in with the two documents. I'm pretty sure there will be a charge for a certified death certificate so I will need a street address to mail a check to.

So Andy, could you look up the phone number of the coroner's office and email it to me so I can call them and find out what I need to do. I would really appreciate it.

I am sorry that this has turned into more of a headache then I hoped it would be. From when I turn all this paperwork in it will be a six weeks wait for a title it be issued.

There, you are up to date from Will Lund's friend Jim Acord.
