

Darby House, 10 The Grove, Southey Street,
Nottingham, NG7 4BS

Dear Janer

Here are the photographs

The photocopy is of an original by James which he painted in the blurred photo. It's one of a set in water colour and gold leaf
- the others he was to give to the technicians in the Blackett Laboratories which are (I think) part of Imperial College, London.

James' exhibition ATOMIC was located in The Yard Gallery at Woburn Hall (building in photo) he became friends with someone I know, Mark Watson who works in the gallery. Mark is pictured with him in Newstead Abbey teaching James to dowse for earth energy lines.
Newstead is where Lord Byron lived - we went there many times.

The photo of James with a man in the old building is the eventful day when The Guardian newspaper came to interview him - the man is the journalist - James was 'asleep' - we eventually got him there to the relief of Jim Walters the guy from Nottingham

City Council who had set it all up.

Over the course of their 3 months James told me everything - including how the formulae - "came to him from the stars"

Please may I have the photos back - but there really is no hurry. Thanks

Jed

If you want to see my work + pictures of the house + garden where he stayed go to www.jedbrignal.co.uk

P.S. The handsome young man with James at the Sundial is my son Tom