Hey Peter,

I was wrong about having breakfast at Sara Moot's restaurant when Deb Moffit and I stopped by. The restaurant, Calamity Jane's down in Georgetown, is actually owned by Sara Areguete with Nick Vroman as a partner. Nick, who is living in Tokyo, emailed me and straightened me out on the Saras.

Briefly: Helen Slade was in Seattle last spring ad told me Sara Moot had a restaurant. Nick Vroman had a show of his photographs at the Georgetown restaurant Calamity Jane's that he said he was in partners with Sara. As Nick said it was patterned after The Two Bells I just assumed he must mean Sara Moot. Actually Nick wrote that Sara Moot's restaurant is the Persimmon in Freemont

Here is the weird part. When I SAW Sara Areguete at Nick's opening I mistook her for Sara Moot. Either I had known Sara Areguete and mixed her up with Moot in my mind or this is the early onset of Alzheimer's.

Actually I guess I can't say early onset anymore as I'm 65 next week.

Speaking of The Two Bells how about we have a Blue Berger and a beer there? I don't think I have been since I last saw you there. I want to ask you about casting an edition of bronze sculptures for me. I have really enjoyed working on building a foundry down at Den Fandrich's. It has been a great summer project but it doesn't look like it will be operational this year.

Anyway I am just about always free so if you want to get together just pick a day and a time and let me know.

Best,

Jim
