Dear Brittany,

It was so good to see you Christmas Day at your mothers. I like visiting with you and the organic HUB beer was great. A really good beer.

And I am sorry I missed the movie with you the next day. Your mother and I traded phone messages but I didn't get her instructions to bus to the theater until it was too late for me to make it. That is the second time I have been invited to see the film and didn't so I guess I am not destined to see it.

I am looking forward to seeing you read Shakespeare in January and going to the arts conference in Spain in February. It seems 2010 will get off to a good start.

And I hope it does for you too. Everything best for the New Year.

Jim
